

I would like to see the Indiana Telephone privacy law stay like it is, or stricter. Every month "I" pay for the use of the telephone line, which is very expensive, and additional fees for caller ID because I don't want to receive unwanted calls. If telephone solicitors want to call me, let them set up a phone line to my house and pay for it themselves. They think this is a privilage, but it is an inconvenience to the people they are calling. Furthermore, I will not do business with any company that is protesting this issue.
